

ASYMMETRIC AURORA DETECTED IN THE TWO HEMISPHERES SIMULTANEOUSLY

NIKOLAI OSTGAARD and Karl Magnus Laundal

Department of Physics and Technology, University of Bergen, Norway

Simultaneous global imaging from space has revealed that the aurora can be significantly different in the two hemispheres. In this paper we report examples of large intensity differences and/or asymmetries and discuss what processes that can produce these differences.

Aurora asymmetry

NIKOLAI OSTGAARD, Department of Physics and Technology, University of Bergen, Norway